24/93% cents. Provisions were firm, the May products closing unchanged to 10 cents higher.

With the war in the far East virtually commenced, and all of the grain markets responding there was a dash to buy here at the opening by some hitherto stubborn short sellers of wheat. The result temporarily was higher prices. May open 1/2 to 1/2 cent higher, at 94/2 to 95, and July was up % to 7/2 at 85/2 to 85/3 cents. In a very short time, however, the short sellers who had turned buyers had cause for regret. Both May and July wheat were offered in large quantities. It was claimed that a line of several million bushels by a large local trader was sold out. Throwing out of this wheat induced general liquidation and the market became extremely weak, May going down to 33% cents, a drop of 1% from the top, while July sold off to 83% cents, or 2% from the top.

The May delivery however, received

Crabs, per dozen 2.00

July sold off to $3\% cents, or 2\% from the top.

The May delivery, however, received good support from the principal long interest, and the price of that option soon regained a cent of the early decline, while July railled in sympathy. The market was helped by a dispatch stating that all offerings of wheat from Odessa had offerings of wheat from Odessa had stopped. A late break in corn and oats had a depressing influence on wheat prices but additional support from the interest credited with being the largest holder of wheat caused a fairly steady tone at the close. May was unchanged at 94 cents, but July was down \(\frac{1}{4}\) at $8\% cents. The feature in trading in corn was the heavy and persistent selling by a prominent commission house. The opening was firm along with wheat. May being unchanged to ½ higher at 54% to 55 cents, but within the first half hour the price had fallen to 65% cents. The bottom was reached at 52 cents, a drop of 3 cents from the opening high point. The close was at 57% cents. July closed 257% lower at 50% cents, after selling between 50% and 55% cents. after selling between 50% and 55% cents.

There was the same experience in oats as in corn trading and at least equal weakness. The opening was firm on war news. May being $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{2} in spite of the weakness in grains. There was a good advance early on an active demand for, pork and lard, but later part of the gain was lost on profit-taking, caused by the break in corn prices. An advance of 10 cents in the price of hogs was a bull factor at the start, as was the war situation. The buying was by commission houses and foreigners. After ranging between $13.60 and $13.90 May pork closed 10 cents higher at $13.65. pork closed 10 cents higher at $13,675, May lard closed unchanged at $7,52%, af-ter selling between $7,52% at $7,57%.
